Student Life

What would happen if there was no free time? For many Elon Students, free time simply does not exist. The year began, with a nonstop whirlwind of activities. From the moment the freshmen stepped on campus, there were things to do, and this helped to keep them from becoming homesick. Next thing we knew, Family Weekend was here: a time for college students to be spoiled by their loved ones. Although all this activity wore students out, there was no time to catch up on sleep; homecoming was coming up. School certainly kept all of us moving. When we weren't in class, relationships and jobs occupied our time — not to mention volunteer work and planning for the future! In school or out of school, life was always full of Reflective Reflections.

A New Start

Back to school time is an exciting time, especially when it is your first year at college. At Elon, Orientation week was packed with group meetings, lawn games, campus tours, dances, and lots of socializing. In addition to all of these, freshmen were faced with a new home, a roommate and making new friends. Dennis Sutton, a freshman, always finds ways to meet new people. Once he was commenting to his friend Andy Manry that he wanted to make new friends. Then he tried to sit down at the fountain and wound up in a girl's lap. Talk about meeting new people! Despite all of these obstacles, most freshmen made the transition from high school to college life without much trouble, thanks to the Orientation leaders.

PP Although orientation was packed with activities, now that I look back, it helped keep my mind off my parents and friends.
-Maile Bushnell

This orientation group enjoys playing the hand game in the bottom floor of Moseley Center. This was one of the many planned activities.

After working from 7 to 11 every day in order to prepare for orientation, we decided to give ourselves a break and have a costume party. Michael Rodgers wore a toga and olive leaves. Rather than changing like everyone else, he wore his toga to go to Crimson Tide.

Another favorite orientation activity was the human pretzel. During orientation, many icebreakers were used to make the new students feel more at home.

Showing mother nature that she can't keep them down, this orientation activity was a real muscle builder.

This student pauses to organize his thoughts on his Global Studies homework. Lake Mary Nell is a beautiful place to lounge and do some work.

Many students sit outside their residence halls and just enjoy the day. Here, the residents of North take time to gather and relax on a beautiful afternoon.

Take Me Away

Elon College offers many on-campus recreational activities for the student body. However, there are several adventurous students that find their own fun off campus. Kristine Merritt said, "I like to rollerblade with my friends at Davidson Park. They have sports fields, playgrounds, and cool rollerblading terrain." Rollerblading is popular so go check out the park! Another student, Chris Woodruff said, "I like livin' on the edge. I go to the rock quarries in Gibsonville and jump off the cliffs or the rope swing." Sounds like a refreshing place to be! You would not be an Elon student without going to the Lighthouse at least once (a week). "You can listen to bands, play pool, and enjoy beverages all in one place," said Kevin DeLong. For those adventurous students looking for something exciting to do off campus there is:

Davidson Park
Applebee's
The Lighthouse

Ham's
Cedarock Park

Steppin' Up

I'm fat... I need to go on a diet.... I need to lose 15 pounds. Do these phrases sound familiar? It seems like Americans today are obsessed with their bodies and weight. Due to famous supermodels, like Cindy Crawford and Kathy Ireland, and men like Arnold Schwarzenegger the stereotype for the perfect body is tall, thin, and, physically fit. What people don't realize is that if everyone looked like the swimsuit models in Sports Illustrated, the perfect body would be something completely different. Even men, who seem to put anything into their bodies, have become more aware of exercise and eat a healthier diet while lifting weights regularly. For years, people have been convinced that the way to lose weight is to go on a rigorous diet or to starve themselves. By dieting this way, students find themselves still flabby, out of shape, and starving. The way of the 90's is the right combination of a healthy diet and a routine exercise program. Elon students have realized that this is the correct way to lose pounds and gain muscle tone. Walking around campus, a person would see many students bike riding, jogging, walking or rollerblading. Weight lifting is not just a man's forte anymore. It has become extremely popular with women who want to become tone and "buff." The exercise trend of the 90's is leading an active lifestyle. Exercise is a habit and has become a part of a daily routine for many students at Elon.

 I believe that your health is based on genetics. Other than dancing for Elon's Finest, I don't attempt to stay fit. 99

"Swimming is the healthiest type of exercise," says Justin Andrews. This is the second year of Elon's swim team.

Aerobics is good for your cardiovascular system and a great way to relieve stress. Aerobic classes are held every night of the week.

99
I don't eat any fat at all. Occasionally I walk to Winn Dixie. It's a fun filled 40 minute walk with people honking and yelling at me.
-Lauren Tambrino

The new and improved weight room gives a more varied workout for students.

The stairmaster gives students many different exercise levels. Students also have exercise bikes and an aerobic machine to try out.

I think Parents Weekend is very valuable because it helps the people who are having trouble adjusting to being away from home. It is also a valuable experience for the parents because they can see the adjustments and experiences their children are going through.

First year students and their parents spend as much time together as possible during Family Weekend.

"Hello Mother, Hello Father"

It's a different world... and adjusting to college life can be quite difficult if a new student is away from home for the first time. This is especially true of students from out-of-state, who may only be able to go home at major breaks. It is not surprising, then, that home sickness is common among students in the first month of school. What is Elon's solution? Family Weekend, of course!

Yes, Family Weekend is a tradition here at Elon, a chance for parents, grandparents, siblings, and other relatives to experience the Elon way of life. This year, Family Weekend took place from September 29 through October 1, with "Mardi Gras: Elon Style!" as its festive theme.

The weekend began with a Family Member/Student "Captain's Choice" golf tournament. This was followed by a "Talent Extravaganza" at 8:00 Friday night.

Saturday's activities began with a picnic "with the President" in McKinnon Hall. Elon parents then had the honor of watching our team bring home a splendid victory against our rival, Lenoir-Rhyne. The victory was celebrated at the Fat Tuesday Feast, which was also held in McKinnon. To end the evening, a "collage concert" of poetry, music, and dance was presented by the students of the Performing Arts Department. All in all, it was not a bad day for Elon students and their relatives.

The final day of Family Weekend featured a special College Coffee with President and Mrs. Fred Young, which they graciously hosted in their home. On this note, the official events of Family Weekend were over, and many students found themselves saying good-bye to dear relatives and friends. All was not lost, though, for many students now had the strength to carry on until Fall Break, when they would be reunited with their families once more.

99 My parents did not come down, but I was still involved in the activities. My friends parents made me feel welcomed.

Mrs. Hudson speaks to her daughter, Dalerie Hudson. Dalerie has just sat down from an exhausting dance with the lead singer of the Fat Tuesday Dinner Band.

Planning Time

To get away from all the chaos and commotion, sometimes students leave campus. Many students took advantage of retreats that were offered to them by various organizations. Retreats generally take place in the first semester of the year. IFC, Panhellenic, and NPHC were three of the organizations that utilized this opportunity. "The goal was for us to evaluate and make goals for Greek life as a whole and as individual organizations," said senior Edmund Knott. This time not only served as an organizational time, but also as a chance for students to get to know each other. If members do not get along goals aren't met. This is one step to being successful.

PP Our retreat (Student Union Board) was a get to know each other bonding experience. This way we can effectively work with each other throughout the year.
-Anwar Cruter
senior

A group of students gather around, at the Intervarsity Retreat, to play and sing some songs.

What a fun way to make a pyramid. IFC members roam the beach on their retreat.

The first annual Media Board Retreat greatly aided the development of healthy relationships between the different groups. It also helped focus the board regarding the needs of the media.

At the IFC, PHC, and NPHC Retreat in North Myrtle Beach, S.C., students like Carolyn Messenetti had time to lay out and enjoy themselves.

I had mixed emotions about freshmen living at East campus.. I didn't think it was right mostly because it's so hard to get into the apartments. We all had to live in dorms.

- Kevin Maust, sophomore

East campus is a set of apartments located right off campus. The waiting list each year is quite long. East campus is the preferred place to live by many students.

Smith residence hall is for male freshmen. The third floors of Smith and Carolina are substance free halls. The residents of these halls sign a pledge to stay free of alcohol and drugs.

Home at Elon

There is no place like home, whether it is a resident room twice the size of your closet at home or your apartment off campus. Students quickly learned that school would soon be their home for the next few years. With such a large student body, it is difficult to provide everyone housing. The majority of freshmen who are not from the surrounding area live in residence halls. Residence life is becoming more exciting, however. Virginia was made co-ed by suite. This would be the first co-ed dorm at Elon. Each hall has a theme based on student's majors. Dorm life was very distracting. Freshman Alex McGill describes it "like a big playground." Distractions were not lacking off campus either. The students who planned on moving into the new Oakhill apartments found themselves without a place to live, since their apartments were not finished. For weeks they lived in hotels, with friends, or staff members. "Even though it was really hard and we felt homeless, it was a good learning experience and it made us appreciate having our apartment even more," stated junior Marti Copper. No matter whether you lived on or off campus, distractions were inevitable—but nothing could take away from the fun and freedom of being on your own.

Jordan Center is only for upperclassmen. Residents like to go out in the courtyard and play volleyball or just lay out.

Once in a while, it snows at Elon (like it did in 1995). The campus turns into a Winter Wonderland, as can be seen from Duke, Carlton and Alamance.

The Iris Holt McEwen Library becomes a familiar place to the students of Elon. This past summer, the library was renovated to make the library more accessible to the students.

At night the campus lights up like a bright star, making it enjoyable to take a stroll. The reflection of the lights shimmers in the fountain during a rainy evening.

Cartoon Mania

Banners, skits, tailgating, football, and rain is how Elon's 1995 Homecoming weekend will be remembered. Homecoming is one of the most anticipated events of the year. Cartoon-mania, the theme this year, was no exception.

The celebration began Wednesday with the penny drive for Habitat for Humanity, and the banner competition. Zeta Tau Alpha won the contest with Mickey Mouse as their main feature. Junior Maggie Bickle, Sigma Sigma Sigma, said "The float competition was a great way for every member of our organization to work together while having fun." Thursday was skit night, a night when the alumni gym became the home of the Flintstones, the Smurfs, and the imaginations of Elon's finest. Senior Scott Hildebrand enjoyed the skits because "Watching people impersonate the cartoons I grew up with brought back a lot of memories." Admission was two dollars and proceeds went to Habitat for Humanity. Alpha Sigma Alpha won the theme night competition with the theme of Alice in Wonderland. Friday night psyched everyone up for the game with the pep rally and fireworks. But, as the excitement grew, the weather turned worse. Saturday was discouraging to many when the parade was cancelled because of the rain. Yet it couldn't keep the fans from cheering on Elon as they beat Wingate 28-22 in double overtime. Freshman Brad Watson said, "I believe that the rain deterred many of the fans from what could have been one of the most exciting Elon football games ever." During halftime Elon was proud to announce the queen Alpha Omicron Pi's Carollynn Messinetti and her escort Zuni Johnson as king.

A lot of people were disappointed to find that John Henton, the comedian for the night was forced to cancel. However, many were satisfied when they were invited to the Alumni Extravaganza, to experience life in New York City, the Moseley Center. As the rain turned to drizzle and the night faded into daylight, many people knew they would reflect on this night in years to come.

Theme night is where the organizations had a chance to show off their talent through a skit, song, or dance. This replaced last years skit night.

The rain made it hard to keep the floats in shape and looking good.

People

From freshmen to seniors, artists to athletes, scholars to professors, we are all one. College is a time to enjoy life, prepare for the future, and most of all to become the people we dream of being. In the boundaries of our Elon world, we will add the final pieces to our puzzles. Everyday we bring ourselves one step closer to putting the finishing touches on our personalities, polish our talents, and learn to express the ideas and feelings we have developed. Elon embraces all kinds of people: those who won the game, made the A's, led the group, and taught the classes. We all contribute as a whole. All these qualities create a home for us, allowing us to display . . .

BBBeeep! “Oh no! How could I have fallen asleep??!” It is 7 a.m. and you have just awakened with your face in your biology paper which is only half way done. You could skip your 10 o’clock class and finish it. Isn’t there a quiz today? What about the book you were supposed to read for British Literature class? It can’t be due today, can it? You thought you would never make it through the day. The only thing that pulled you through the week was the fact that the weekend only got closer. Christmas break couldn’t arrive soon enough through all the tests and papers. Then there was winter term, time to relax and get ahead before second semester. Spring break and graduation highlighted the final semester. However, there was always a time to spotlight . . .

Talented Talents..

Somehow We Find Time To Take Classes

Classes, Classes. It seems everything we do has to deal with our classes. Whether we are going to, coming from, or signing up for them, classes surround us. The average student would say that he/she spends 75% of his/her day doing homework and various class assignments. The other 25% goes toward work, meals, and socializing. What about sleep? Does anyone here know what that is? Is it all worth it? Nina Suggs, a junior communications and business major, says: "Intellectually it (classes and such) is worth it, but physically it is a strain." Wouldn't we all agree?

Classes, Classes. They contain so much information that we have to write over sixty words a minute just to stay a few words behind what the professor is saying. How can we keep up? Shelton Mooney, a junior history education major, offers this advice: "Follow the assignments and pay attention. . . read and participate." Seems like Shelton is keeping the pace!

Classes, Classes. These, papers, and projects are sometimes a "pain in the neck." We often have more assignments than we know what to do with, or have time to complete. Sometimes it seems that the professors believe that we are only taking one course: theirs. Whether we take Introduction to Education or Commercial Law, class time, homework, and library research take more and more of our waking hours. Who was it that said college was a breeze? Just one big party? Will we ever look back on all of this fondly? Consider the words of Stacy Mogol, a senior psychology major: "The most memorable years of my life were experienced here, at Elon College. It is frightening to know that graduation is quickly approaching and college life will soon be over." Sounds like Stacy will miss all of this. . . maybe college just has to "grow on us."

What do I expect to get out of my Elon Experience...hmm. Well, since being in college is a whole new "frontier" for me, I suppose it can be whatever I want it to be. I guess I really want to achieve three things: 1) To make some life-long friendships; 2) To get an education (of course); 3) And to change personally so that I may be the best Elic Senter that I can present to others. Over the next four years, I know that I will be presented with many opportunities and challenges, in part due to the NC Teaching Fellows Program. (Just coming up with a four year course plan gave me a six-day headache!). Hopefully, my experiences and training here at Elon will equip me with the abilities to meet these challenges and seize these opportunities so that I can graduate in 1999 and become the best teacher I possibly can. I also hope that while here, I can make a contribution such that I will be remembered for at least having been here, if only for a short period of time. I think that's all anybody wants, including myself...to be noticed, and remembered; to have somebody say, "Hey, remember so-and-so? Weren't they great?" That, and hopefully some great stories about the day I knocked over the rocks at Stonehenge in Great Britain!

I remember asking myself at the beginning of college, "Why am I here? I didn't care about sororities, dating, or even getting involved with anything outside my academics. I came to college for a higher education, not a social life." I changed tremendously my first year here. I got involved with S.U. B., Black Cultural Society, and intramural basketball. I was also actively involved with army R.O.T.C. I went to places I never dreamed of going, and I met people from all walks of life. I became a strong-minded, outgoing person, who had time for both academics and a social life.

I had my share of challenges and tears, but I overcame them successfully. Not once did I ever feel alone, because there were professors and faculty members who stuck with me through rough edges of college life.

My second semester as a freshman, I made the ultimate decision to become a charter member of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Incorporated. I have a stronger sense of identity. I take pride in who I am and my heritage as an African - American.

Going Overboard... for Studies Abroad

Studying abroad is an excellent way to learn, not only about other cultures and people, but also about yourself. Elon has an impressive international studies program which includes trips lasting two weeks, one month, one semester, and even a full year.

Trips offered include those to London, Paris, Belize, Spain, Ireland, and Australia. Other trips incorporate journeys to several places, such as the World War II and European Economy tours. With so many choices, the question to ask is: Where will Elon students be spotted next?

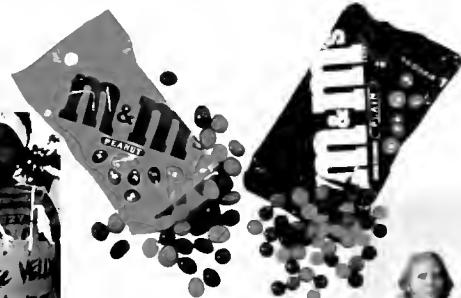

Corrine Auman and Ilona Teleki enjoy an unusually warm September day in Oxford. The day trip was part of their semester-long stay in London.

Guys and Dolls

Guys and Dolls is a play which shows how the lives of four main characters, Nathan Detroit, Miss Adelaide, Sky Masterson, and Sergeant Sarah Brown, interweave.

The play opens with Nathan Detroit trying to set up a crap game for some gamblers. To secure a place for the game, Nathan needs a thousand dollars. He knows that Sky Masterson is always game for unusual bets, so Nathan wagers with him that Sky cannot take a "doll" of Nathan's choice to Havana with him. Nathan proceeds to choose Sergeant Sarah Brown of the Salvation Army to be the "doll."

While Sky is trying to convince Sarah to go with him to Havana, Miss Adelaide, Nathan's fiancee of 14 years, is trying to convince Nathan to finally marry her. Sky succeeds in persuading Sarah to make the trip to Havana by guaranteeing that he will deliver twelve genuine sinners to a prayer meeting held at the Salvation Army mission. The two set off for Havana, and while there fall in love.

Sky pays Nathan the thousand dollars, saying that he didn't take Sarah, in order to protect her image. At the ensuing craps game, Sky makes an outstanding bet with everyone present on his roll of the dice: if he wins, all of the gamblers must attend Sarah's prayer meeting; if he loses, he must pay everyone one thousand dollars a piece. The making of this bet brings on the musical number "Luck Be a Lady Tonight," and luck indeed turns in Sky's favor.

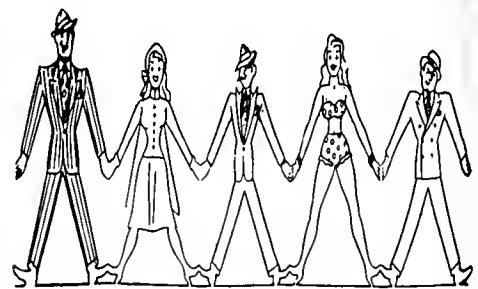

During the prayer meeting, which will save Sarah's mission, Nicely-Nicely Johnson sings the popular song, "Sit Down Your Rocking the Boat." Sky and Sarah get married, and Sky joins the Salvation Army.

At the very end of the musical, Miss Adelaide and Nathan also get married (its about time)! The End...

Cultural Events

Elon's theme could be "Culture, Culture, Culture." Every year, new students are entertained by great acts during Orientation, and the entire student body enjoys feature writers and speakers during such special times as Fall Convocation, Parents Weekend, homecoming, and graduation.

An impressive array of talents has been seen on Elon's campus this semester alone, from environmental writers to the founder of a world renowned organization, Habitat for Humanity. The fall calendar featured such performers as: John Densmore, W.D. Snodgrass, the Emanons, and the Ballet Manhattan. Spring brought with it such happenings as "Little Shop of Horrors," John Amos in "Halley's Comet," and concerts by the Bristol Brothers, Elan, and the Elon College Dancers.

Any student that says he or she has not been exposed to culture has simply not looked at the Cultural Events Calendar lately.

Millard Fuller, president and founder of Habitat for Humanity, was awarded an honorary degree from Elon when he spoke at Fall Convocation. His message was an urgent call for all people to get involved and do something for the good of society.

The Spencers brought their splendid magic show to Elon during Orientation Week. The couple encouraged active participation and chose a number of volunteers from the audience.

Governor Jim Hunt visited the campus to see what draws so many people to Elon from out of state. He spent the evening at a dinner held at the home of President and Mrs. Fred Young.

John McCutcheon, a folk and instrumental singer, performed at McCrary Theatre on September 18, 1995. His music was both fun and meaningful.

Daniel Quinn, author of Ishmael, attended a dinner reception and spoke on environmental concerns this fall.

The art department sponsored an exhibit by renowned photographer Mary Tortorici. Her pictures of water and natural scenes display the theme of this year's Phi Psi Cli, "Reflections."

Organizations

A cry for help. There was never a lack of opportunity. There were over eighty organizations on campus who were always in need of help. The large variety of organizations helped to get students involved. There was the religious organizations, honor, greek groups, and Elon volunteers to name a few. They all became more than just a group of people to us. The people became families to each other. They also offered the chance to discover the things you found enjoyment in. Students were attracted to major related clubs which would be to their benefit academically. While the chance to be creative, have fun, and serve the community engorged involvement in other organizations, advantages were a great attraction of getting involved in . . .

Organized Organizations.

Service, greek, career, and media organizations. . . there is something for everyone. Elon campus organizations get off to a great start at the Organization Fair on September 8.

Sports

During practice or a game, players can be seen with flushed cherry red faces and sweat tumbling down the sides of them like rain drops. There was so much left to do. The top priority was always dinner. The Fighting Christians were bound and determined that there was only room for improvement. The football team was at their best Family Weekend winning the first home game of the season 31 - 0. Debbie Hall, a senior on the women's volleyball team, made the All Tournament team during the Invitational Challenge hosted at Elon. This was only the beginning. The most important quality in athletics was determination. The Fighting Christians exhibited determination through their courage in the face of adversity.

Determined to do their best for themselves and their school, athletes bravely led the way into battle. It all began with . . .

Determined Determinations.

Fun and Games

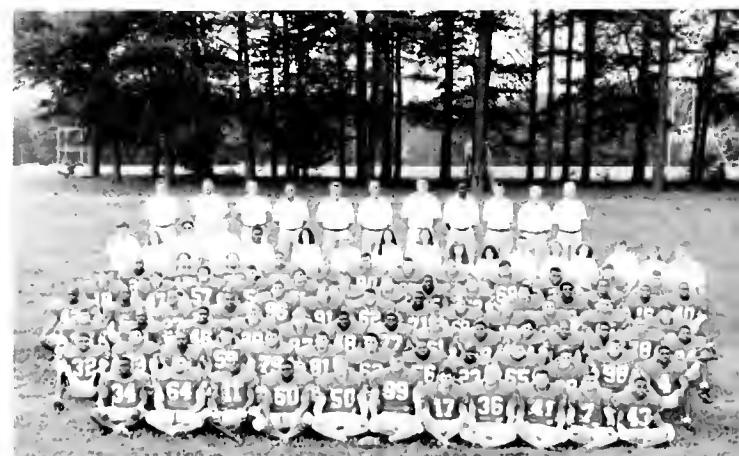

Dressed out in their gold and maroon uniforms, listening to the roar of the crowd, the Fighting Christian football team sprinted out on the field ready to fight hard. Although the football team did not have a winning season, the men played with determination and enthusiasm all the way up until the final game. These players used their athletic abilities to pull from inside to beat the tougher teams such as #4 ranked Lenoir-Rhyne. Every day during practice, the Fighting Christians combined their knowledge and skills to improve their methods and techniques, in order to be a better player both mentally and physically.

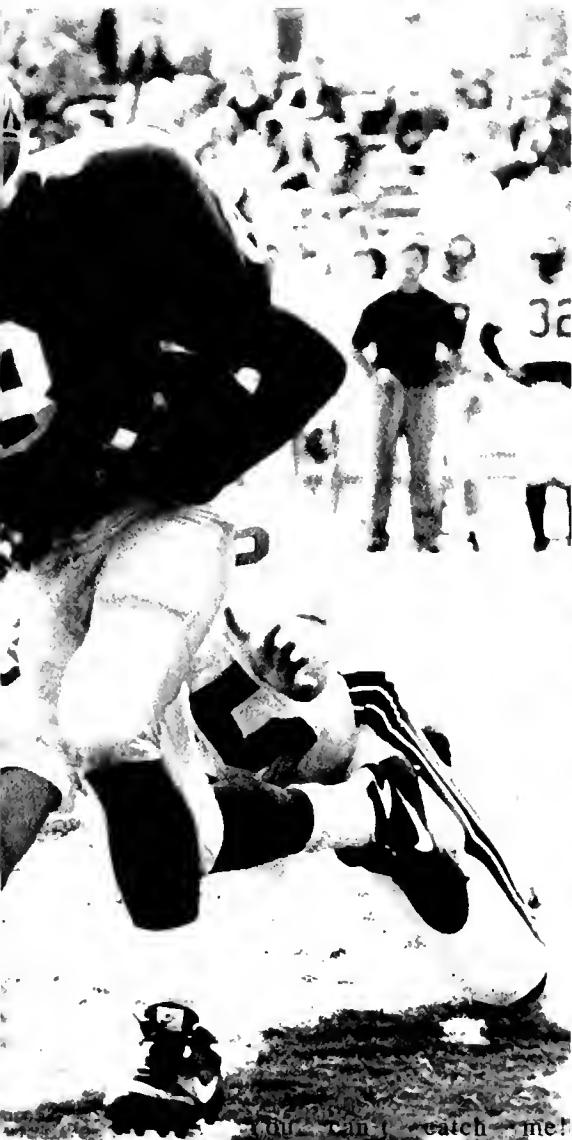

With the loss of Head Coach Leon Hart and coaching staff, the football players had to make some difficult decisions at the end of the season as to whether or not they would be returning. Although this loss will have a great impact on the men, hopefully this will bring them together as a team and they will strive for an even greater record next year.

A Strive for Excellence

Elon has had a dominating soccer program for many years now and this year the team did extremely well living up to the high expectations placed upon them. With strength, competitiveness and determination, the women's soccer team, under new head coach Paul Webster, had a spectacular season finishing with 15-4. Key player Ginger Stauleup finished her soccer college career as being selected as Conference Player of the Year. Players Kristen Attarian, Kam Radford, and Stephanie Sorrells all were selected for the First All Conference Team. The Lady Fighting Christians set their goal, worked hard throughout the season, followed their dedicated hearts, and kept the Elon soccer program's lasting tradition alive.

The men's soccer team also finished their season on a winning note. The team started out the season dominating the conference but after the injury of central player, Bob Artioli midway through the season, the team struggled to keep themselves on top. Asi Yonsson was a major asset to the team and was honored as Conference Freshman of the Year. Tony Lagonna and Andy Lund were two key players that led the team to many victories.

DE-fense! Kevin Sullivan challenges the other team and wins the ball. He always gave 100 percent.

She's got moves! Kam Radford uses her skills to get by the defender. Kam's goals are one of the reasons for the team's winning record.

Watch Out! Melanie Piazza is ready to pass a long ball to a forward waiting for a score.

fights hard until the end of a good finishing time.

Runner Scott Breslin runs with enthusiasm and dedication as he finishes the race.

The lady Christians' courage and dedication paid off in another successful season for the volleyball team. This year was their fourth consecutive 30-win season. Through their many efforts, the ladies developed the spirit and talent to put them in third place. The conference record was 9-5 with the overall record being 33-12. The third place title was not always theirs. It was only through a head-to-head match with Wingate College conference powerhouse that they clinched third place. This would place Catawba College in forth. The Lady Fighting Christians had a spectacular season.

All the early morning practices finally paid off for the Cross Country team at the Southeastern Regional meet in Spartanburg, South Carolina. The ladies placed fifth and the men followed closely in eighth. It was in this meet that freshman Meg Crawford and Michael Cody were at their best. The women's overall record was 70-14 while the men completed their season with a 67-27 record. As the season came to a close, the teams realized their hard work had paid off.

Accurate serving is one key to winning a volleyball game. This player doesn't let her team down as she aces a serve.

Hoop it UP

The men and women basketball teams were extremely dominating this year. The men's team, led by senior Bryan Therriault, started off their season with a bang by back-to-back wins, one in triple overtime. Many rookie freshmen and transfers provided the team with the offense and defense they needed. The other basketball players stepped up their game and played with strategy and skill to ensure the team a winning season. Men's basketball games were exciting to watch, but not nearly as fun to play.

A women's basketball game would also be a great place to have a lot of fun. The women had a fantastic season. They played with enthusiasm, strength and skill to pull from inside to win some of the hard games. With three honors freshmen additions, the team proved to be dominating in all aspects of life, challenging themselves both on the court and in the classroom.

Both the men and women tennis teams began their season with the intention of going to nationals. Men's tennis player Christian Brower stated that he believed the team "will place among the top five in the nation for Division II schools." Both teams came on strong and had excellent seasons.

The men and women teams practiced everyday for at least two hours until the matches began. Each time a school was played both teams had six singles matches and three doubles matches. The men's team proved to be a young team with four of the top six players being freshmen and sophomores. The team was strong this year and will be even more dominating in years to come.

The women's team on the other hand has been strong in the past with most of it's players being sophomores and juniors. These women worked hard to maintain their good standing in the conference with long practices and endurance. The players felt confident that they would have a good season and they proved their instincts correct.

Women's Tennis Team- J. Beers, J. Bradshaw, S. Collins, E. Connors, K. Cotton, S. Delfausse, K. Fleming, A. Lane, K. McLaughlin, A. Otte

This player shows that sometimes hitting your hardest isn't the key to winning a tennis match. Ball placement is a key to victory for most players.

Full Count

The BASEBALL team started out with a bang this year with wins over Catawba and Mt. Olive. Under leadership by transfer, pitcher Joey Winkelsas, the freshmen recruits Scott Brendle, Jason Napier, Reggie Wells and the other upperclassmen, players were able to step up their game and win many of the tougher victories. Elon played a Division I team early in the season and came out victorious. In a game over Shippensburg University, Elon came back from a score of 1-5 in the sixth inning to win the game 6-5. Excellent hitting and teamwork on the field allowed the men to come back from difficult situations such as these many times. As the season progressed, the stands became fuller and the enthusiasm of the players increased as Elon headed on its way to a winning season.

The SOFTBALL team also had an outstanding season. After losing a few seniors last year, the team did an outstanding job rebuilding their team with five new freshmen players. With pitcher Theresa Schifano on the mound, the ladies had a great outlook for the season. These women worked extremely hard both during the season and in the fall practicing for three hours daily, six times per week and playing double headers at least four times per week. Their hard work definitely paid off during the season.

pitcher Joey Winkelsas struck out another strike. He struck out a numerous amount of players this season:

Mike Tiger runs by and steps on third base after his teammate hits another ball into the outfield.

First baseman, Scott Brendle hits another line drive to make it to first base. His excellent hitting was a great asset to the team.

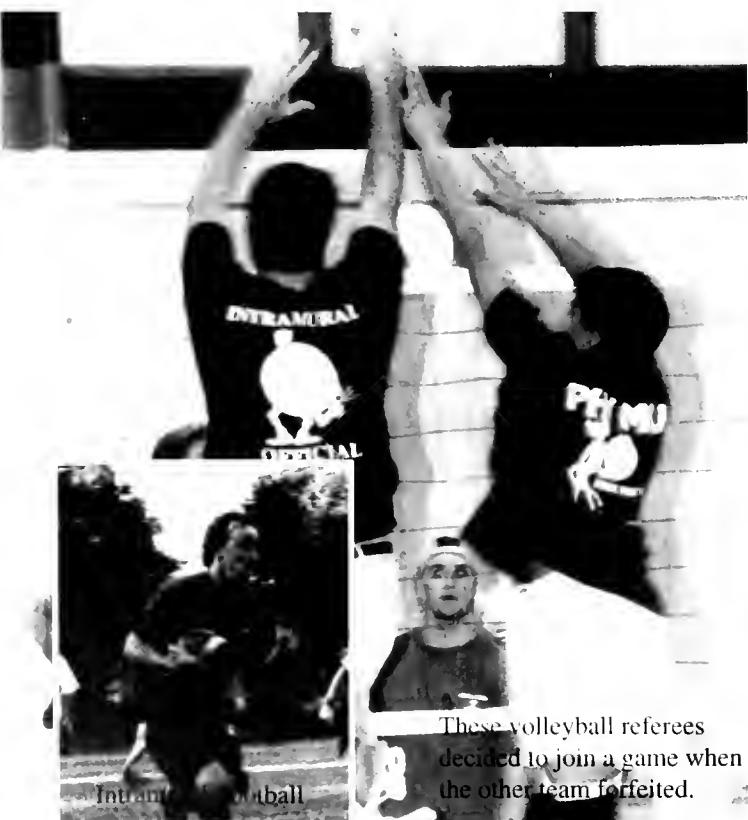

This Elon player makes another great catch in the outfield. Awareness is a key to playing softball.

Shades Green

GOLF is a sport that takes practice, talent and determination. The Elon Golf Team used their skills while traveling from course to course and came out with many victories. There are not many spectators at the rounds because the men only play in Burlington once throughout the course of their season. The players know that the Fighting Christians are with them in spirit throughout their long tournaments.

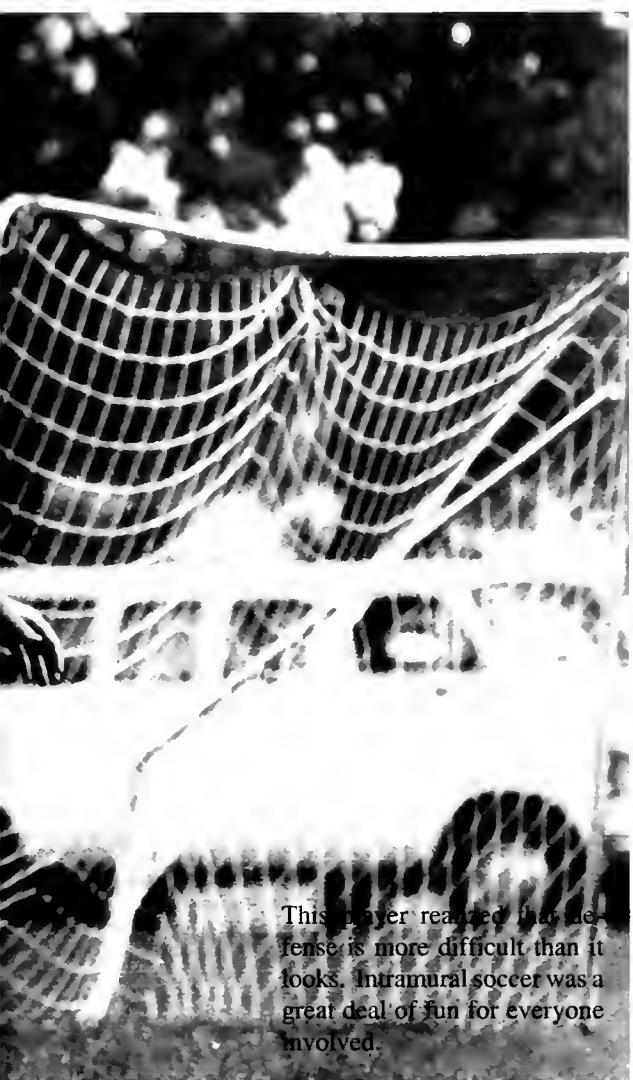

INTRAMURALS are a fun and enthusiastic way to get involved at school. Many students gathered friends and made teams to play numerous sports such as football, volleyball, racquetball, walleyball and basketball. There are mainly three divisions of the leagues: competitive for men, competitive for women, and non-competitive, which is a co-ed league. The first place prize for the leagues was a designer Campus Recreation T-shirt but most teams played more for their own pride rather than the T-shirt. Intramural games were held two to three times per week and were refereed by the Campus Recreation staff. Intramurals brought much school spirit to Elon both by the players and the many students who came out to watch and support their friends playing in the games.

These volleyball referees decided to join a game when the other team forfeited.

Golf Team - B. Agee, J. Ennis, D. Forde, N. Glicos, T. Grassi, B. Lawrence, B. McArthur, K. Milligan

This player realized that defense is more difficult than it looks. Intramural soccer was a great deal of fun for everyone involved.

The Elon basketball cheerleaders did a great job getting the crowd involved in the game. During a time-out they would usually come on the court and do a stunt like this.

Cheerleading Team- First Row- K. Sweeney, A. York, K. Wolfe, D. Redmon, Second Row- C. Buckley, S. Skrabak, S. Davis, D. Fry, C. Dockery, T. White

*From all of us-
1996 Phi Psi Cli Staff*

Elon Past...

Elon Present...

*As another year at Elon comes to a close,
we reflect on the good and bad times that make up our memories.*

Erin R. McElroy

Reflecting within ourselves is one step in becoming who we are as a person. It guides our days and lives. It gives us the personal satisfaction of peace and contentment within ourselves.

1969...
1966

*J. Earl Daniely was the President
Tuition was $1,050.00 per year*

*Population totaled 1,1817
Eugene Perry was the first black student to graduate from Elon.*

McEwen Library was open to the students for the first time.

SGA was required to keep a record of their budget for the first time.

Winter Term was available for the first time.

The publication of Veritas, the school newspaper which began in 1968 ended in 1969.

Vietnam Moratorium.*

Can You Imagine if...

All students under 21 were required to live in the dorms, unless they lived with their relatives, or spouse.

All dorm rooms were inspected at 10:30am. The beds must be made, the floors swept, tables dusted and free from articles, and no posters could be hung on the door.

The dining hall served steak every Saturday night, and all male students were required to wear their coats and ties.

*All students were required to attend church every Sunday and Monday.
Freshmen were not permitted to leave campus for more than one consecutive day without a note.*

Students were required to remain on campus for the first four weekends of school with no exceptions.

Freshmen were required to learn all college yells and chants, to attend pep meetings and events, and to wear nameplates at all times.
